

Read it twice. Then answer these.

Before the sermon, the summary, or the commentary. No right answers.

Passage _____

Date _____

1. What does the text actually say?

Before any meaning: what is written, what is repeated, whose voice is speaking.

2. What keeps pulling your attention?

A word, a phrase, a turn you can't get past. You don't have to know why yet.

3. What are you bringing to it?

Assumptions, memories, what you've been told this means. Name them so you can set them down.

4. What confused you, or sat uneasily?

Questions are welcome here, even uncomfortable ones. Nothing has to resolve.

5. What did you feel as you read?

Not what you think you should feel. What you felt.

6. What do you think this text is exploring?

Not what it teaches. What it is about.

Before you close the book

What will you sit with longer?

What might this text be asking of you?
